

MASFAA CONFERENCE 2022

"Finding Your Anchor in a Sea of Change"

The past two years have brought change and rough seas for everyone in the Higher Ed community, and as Financial Aid Professionals we certainly had more than our fair share! I was recently thinking about what helped me through all of the difficulty and am thankful to have found an anchor. Amid the madness of the pandemic a group of six Financial Aid Directors, crossing 4 states, began a group chat to work through some of the questions and uncertainty of the CARES Act. This group chat became an incredible anchor amid the growing sea of change and continues to be just that. I have come to realize how important "putting myself out there" - volunteering on committees, being open to opportunities, offering to create and present sessions - truly is. I have helped others, but in doing so have helped myself. I am encouraging EVERYONE to consider "putting yourself out there" by offering a session or pulling a panel together for this year's MASFAA Conference in November. Think outside the box and offer what you have - I promise it will be worth it!
